AquaTech Imaging Solutions

Since 1998 AquaTech has been in the forefront of the design and production of professional photographic accessories. We first began manufacturing our Sport Housings for professional photographers and cinematographers and our innovative products were focused towards surfing and ocean sports. Since then we have strived to continuously update our designs and materials to offer the best in lightweight and durable Sport Housings. And, with our newest release, the AxisGo, we're now in the hands of anyone with access to a smartphone.

Today our Sport Housings are used in almost every area of photography including advertising, surfing, sailing, documentary, ocean seascape art, fashion, fishing and Olympic water sports. The introduction of our Sport Shield in 2001 expanded our area of focus into other fields of photography such as wildlife and outdoor sports.

Our developments have made it possible to capture images in extreme weather conditions. Whether it be rain, snow, wind, or dust, the AquaTech Sport Shield products protect your valuable camera equipment from harsh environments. In 2009 we introduced the Sensory Gloves and Soft Good lines of products. In 2017 we released the AxisGO product line, which is designed for use with the iPhone. Bringing everything we've learned from our Sport Housings, we were able to develop high-quality professional water housing system for the world's most famous modern-day camera, the iPhone.

Throughout the years we've listened to both professional and amateur photographers around the world. Our family of products has become the top choice for capturing incredible images and stunning video for shooting in water and extreme conditions.
